and the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 50 percent. In 1990, 15 percent of the population was obese, but by 2000, that number had risen to 23 percent. In 2008, the prevalence of obesity in the United States was 33.9 percent, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. The increase in obesity is a major public health concern because it is a leading cause of death and disability in the United States. Obesity is a risk factor for many chronic diseases, including heart disease, diabetes, and certain types of cancer. It is also a leading cause of disability, with obese people more likely to have difficulty walking, climbing stairs, and performing other physical activities. The increase in obesity is also a major concern for the health care system, as it is a leading cause of health care costs. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimate that obesity costs the United States $147 billion in health care costs each year. The increase in obesity is a major public health concern, and it is important to take steps to prevent and treat obesity.
